

WEYERHAEUSER- WASHINGTON LOWER COLUMBIA REGION

RECREATIONAL ACCESS INFORMATION

Updated May 22, 2023

ACCESS INFORMATION

Longview – St. Helens, Yacolt, Stella and Bear River are four permit areas within the Lower Columbia Region. The Longview – St. Helens permit area is in the Longview – St. Helens Tree Farm. Yacolt, Stella and Bear River permit areas are within the Cathlamet Tree Farm. For additional information or to purchase a permit please go to www.recreation.weyerhaeuser.com. Property announcements, such as road closures, will be posted on the website.

Public Access Corridors are maintained to provide direct access to State land and fisheries. These corridors generally remain open for motorized access unless closed for extreme fire danger or other operational concerns. These corridors do not require a recreational access permit. Details of the corridors are:

- The 4100 Road Public Access Corridor begins at the South Toutle Road & 4100 Road junction and continues eastward along the 4100 Road and ends at the bridge where the 4100 Road crosses the South Fork Toutle River. This corridor also includes the 4200, 4240, 2710, and 4640 Roads which access State land between the North Fork Toutle River & the South Fork Toutle River.
- The 1900 Road Public Access Corridor begins at the 1900 Road off of SR504 in Kid Valley and continues along the 1900 Road; the 1900 Road crosses the bridge over the North Fork Toutle River, continues along the 1901 Road, continues down the 508 Road, and ends at the Green River Fish Hatchery.
- The 3100 Road Public Access Corridor begins at the 3100 Road off of SR504 (between mile posts 30 and 31) and continues southward to the North Fork Toutle River.

Public access to the Ryderwood area of the Cathlamet Tree Farm is controlled by other landowners and does not require a recreational access permit while on Weyerhaeuser property. Permission must be granted by adjacent landowners.

Lands that are not included in the Recreation Permit and Lease program are open to non-motorized public access, day use only.

SCATTERED LEASE TRACTS

We have scattered leased tracts located throughout the Lower Columbia Region. These tracts are posted "No Trespassing – Private Recreation Lease" and are closed to all entry unless you are a member of that lease. The lease boundaries are shown on the recreation map for the permit area the lease is located in and on the online permit map at www.recreation.weyerhaeuser.com/permits. For more information on leases please go to www.recreation.weyerhaeuser.com/leases.
